Red Rock Software Creates Mac OS X v10.4 “Tiger” Plugin for DeltaGraph

SALT LAKE CITY (May 2, 2005) – Red Rock Software today announced that its award-winning Red Rock DeltaGraph data analysis, charting, and graphing software will include a plugin for Spotlight – Apple’s advanced file searching feature from the newly-released Mac OS X version 10.4 “Tiger”. Red Rock DeltaGraph 5.6, which was released in April and is already Tiger compatible will allow customers in marketing research, scientific research, professional publishing, and other industries migrating to Mac OS X Tiger to utilize Spotlight to efficiently find, organize, and manage all of their Red Rock DeltaGraph charts.

“Our customers can count on Red Rock Software to integrate the latest technology to improve their DeltaGraph user experience,” said Red Rock Software CEO Craig Hopson. “We’re excited to release the Red Rock DeltaGraph Spotlight plugin; we’re sure this is a feature that every Mac customer will want to use. We understand our Mac customers because we are Mac users and we know how to bring the latest Apple technology to DeltaGraph.”

“The Spotlight feature in Tiger lets a user instantly find anything anywhere on their Mac and that will change the way people use their computers,” said Ron Okamoto, Apple’s vice president of Worldwide Developer Relations. “Red Rock’s Spotlight plugin makes excellent use of ‘Tiger’ innovation to allow customers to take full advantage of DeltaGraph on Mac OS X.”

Many Red Rock DeltaGraph customers have hundreds of Red Rock DeltaGraph charts on their hard drives. Red Rock DeltaGraph now allows Spotlight to “look” inside Red Rock DeltaGraph files and enable customers to quickly find all the charts related to a particular experiment, analysis, or project. The Spotlight search window groups Red Rock DeltaGraph files with emails, documents, and other related files to maximize ease of use.

Apple’s Mac OS X version 10.4 “Tiger,” which includes more than 200 new features, began shipping on Friday, April 29, 2005.
